The Bloomsbury Hotel is tucked between bustling Tottenham Court Road, gregarious Covent Garden and creative Clerkenwell.

Just a few minutes' walk from Oxford Street, Leicester Square and Covent Garden, The Bloomsbury Hotel is a fabulous fusion of London design styles. Its Superior and Deluxe bedrooms, luxurious Studio Suites modern restaurant, bar and conference centre blend old world grandeur with contemporary comfort and new technology. Inside, sumptuous sofas adorn the lounge and sinuous modern armchairs complement the original wood panelling in the Landseer Bar. Bedrooms boast crisp white sheets, duck down duvets and complimentary broadband access.

The refurbishment of The Bloomsbury Hotel means that conferences and corporate events can take place in truly distinguished surroundings, with a choice of 13 function room and suites, such as the Queen Mary and George V Halls, where stunning original features adorn superbly-equipped, air conditioned facilities.

Our restaurant and bar take their name from the great Victorian architect, Sir Edwin Landseer Lutyens. In common with Lutyens works, the dishes on offer are classic British creations. For smaller meetings, the Library and Chapel are one-offs, one lined with finely detailed bookshelves, the other featuring the stone floors and trappings of its original use.
