

The Bloomsbury Hotel

LONDON

LUTYENS

LOUNGE

Sir Edwin Landseer Lutyens OM, KCIE, PRA, FRIBA, LLD, (29 March 1869 - 1 January 1944) was a leading 20th century British architect. Lutyens was named after a friend of his father's, Sir Edwin Landseer, the painter and sculptor, who was also his godfather. Lutyens was the architect of this building. The hotel was originally built for the Young Women's Christian Association with the foundation stone laid in 1929 and officially opened by Queen Mary.
