DALLOWAY Terrace

Winter at Dalloway Terrace Returns for Season 2

‘Winter At Dalloway’ is back and we couldn’t be happier! Bloomsbury’s enchanting Dalloway Terrace has been transformed yet again into a magical secret winter cabin, becoming the perfect heated hideaway complete with hot cocktails, cheese fondue, the ever popular lululemon yoga classes and a hearty menu of winter delights.

The terrace has been transformed by master florists Wild at Heart by Nikki Tibbles allowing guests to lose themselves amidst a canopy of frosted foliage, ferns and pine cones. The restaurant, which has been inspired by nature and the turn of the seasons, provides the perfect location for guests to escape the cold weather beneath sheep skin rugs. The heated terrace will also be providing hot water bottles ensuring guests achieve the perfect cosy evening.

Dalloway Terrace is embracing the Alpine spirit with an exclusive range of savoury and sweet Fondue in collaboration with London’s La Fromagerie. The savoury offering includes a selection of sourdough and pickled root vegetables with a Classic Swiss cheese (£12) or with added charcuterie (£4.50). For those with a sweeter tooth, look no further than the Milk Chocolate Fondue with Clementines, Strawberries and Banana (£8).

This winter season, Dalloway Terrace will also be offering a new Festive Afternoon Tea menu in collaboration with Candice Brown; author of recently released cookbook ‘Comfort’ and winner of The Great British Bake Off 2016. Candice prides herself on taking inspiration from traditional favourites and experimenting with them to create exciting flavour combinations and is excited to be offering her gastronomic expertise to the Bloomsbury based restaurant.
